

Written Testimony: Rosemary

---

1. Where were you when the mobile went missing?

I was in the meeting room with Matthew, discussing our upcoming strategy. I clearly remember seeing the phone on the table next to his lunch—he was distracted by his chicken wrap, I think. Actually, wait—no, I might have left briefly to grab a coffee from the kitchen. But I'm sure I was back before anything happened. I mean, I think.

2. Could anyone corroborate your story?

Well, Matthew was there, of course. But I don't know if he was paying much attention to me, let alone his phone. He was more focused on the fries. As for anyone else, I'm not sure. Josh walked past the room a few times. He could've seen me, but who knows if he was paying attention? He looked like he had something on his mind.

3. What was your interest in the mobile?

Interest? None, really. I have my own phone, and it works just fine. Matthew's phone is always pinging with messages, so honestly, it's more of a nuisance than anything. But, I guess it's important for work. Not important enough for me to take it, though!

4. Did you hear anyone talking about the mobile on the day it went missing?

Not directly. But Fiona was acting... unusually calm about everything. She did mention something about "letting things come to you naturally." Maybe she was hinting at something? And Ken—well, he's always talking about tech stuff. I think I overheard him muttering something about "phone settings," but that could've been about anything. Or maybe it wasn't?

5. What motivations might someone have for taking the mobile?

Well, Matthew's phone is full of confidential information, so I guess anyone wanting an advantage at work could benefit from having it. I'm not saying I want an advantage, but someone else might. Rachel, for instance, is always keen on keeping everything organized—maybe she thought she could do better if she had more insight into Matthew's work? Or Josh, who loves causing chaos... maybe he just wanted to mess with Matthew.

6. Do you have any suspects for who took the mobile and why?

Well, if I had to point fingers... Fiona might've taken it, just to "manifest" something or whatever she calls it. Josh? Definitely suspicious, with how much he was hovering around that day. Ken has the know-how to get into it if he wanted to, though he's more into fixing tech than stealing it. Rachel's always meticulous—maybe she swiped it to tidy up Matthew's cluttered calendar. As for Shashika, she's always about efficiency, so if she took it, it would've been with the best intentions... right?

Written Testimony: Fiona

---

1. Where were you when the mobile went missing?

I was at my desk, meditating to clear my mind before the afternoon rush. I like to take a few minutes to just breathe and focus. Though, now that I think about it, I did leave for a minute to refill my water bottle... but I wasn't gone long. I'm sure I was back before anything could have happened.

2. Could anyone corroborate your story?

Well, it's hard to say. Meditation is a personal thing, you know? No one was around me at the time, but I'm pretty sure Rachel saw me at my desk right before I started. She's always walking by, doing her rounds. And maybe Ken passed by too—he's always pacing when the printer's not working.

3. What was your interest in the mobile?

Matthew's mobile? I have no personal interest in it. The constant notifications would just disrupt my calm. I did mention something to Matthew about letting go of material distractions, but I meant that philosophically. I wouldn't need or want his phone in any way.

4. Did you hear anyone talking about the mobile on the day it went missing?

Not directly, but there was a bit of tension in the office. Ken was talking about some new tech update, which could've been about phones, I guess? Rosemary seemed frustrated, though, which isn't unusual when she's been with Matthew. Josh? He was oddly quiet—too quiet. And when Josh is quiet, something's usually up.

5. What motivations might someone have for taking the mobile?

If anyone wanted more insight into Matthew's work, they'd have all the motivation they need. Rosemary's always in those high-stakes meetings with him—she might have wanted more access. Josh would probably do it just for the chaos. Ken could have taken it to "fix" something, like he always does. And Rachel... well, she likes to keep things in order. Maybe she thought she could improve Matthew's digital mess?

6. Do you have any suspects for who took the mobile and why?

If I had to guess, I'd say Josh. It's exactly the kind of low-key chaos he loves to create. Though Ken's obsession with all things tech makes him a suspect too—maybe he thought he could "improve" Matthew's phone setup. Shashika is all about efficiency, so if she took it, she probably thought she could make Matthew's workday more productive. Rosemary? She spends enough time with Matthew—maybe she wanted some extra insight into his schedule.

Written Testimony: Ken

---

1. Where were you when the mobile went missing?

I was in the breakroom... or maybe the printer room? No, wait—I was fixing the printer! That thing jams more often than not. Josh was there too, complaining about it. We were both trying to get the stupid thing working, but I think I stepped out for a moment to grab a tool. Or was it coffee? Anyway, I was definitely busy with the printer most of the time.

2. Could anyone corroborate your story?

Yeah, like I said, Josh was there, grumbling about the paper jam. He could confirm I was with him for most of it. Although, now that I think about it, I might've left him alone briefly. Fiona walked by at one point, totally zen as usual, so she might've seen me too.

3. What was your interest in the mobile?

Honestly, none. Matthew's phone is old. I've tried to get him to upgrade at least a dozen times, but he insists on keeping it. I've helped him with minor tech issues before, but I've got no need for it. If I wanted to play with an outdated device, I'd just use my old iPhone 6!

4. Did you hear anyone talking about the mobile on the day it went missing?

Not directly, but I did overhear Rosemary saying something about how Matthew was being careless again. She didn't mention the phone specifically, but it was clear she was annoyed about something. And Rachel—she seemed stressed that day, as usual. I wouldn't be surprised if she overheard something. Josh? Well, he's always up to something.

5. What motivations might someone have for taking the mobile?

Well, Matthew's phone probably has sensitive info on it, right? That could be valuable to someone wanting to get ahead. Rosemary is always in high-level meetings with him—she might have wanted a peek. Fiona seems like she couldn't care less, but who knows with her? She's always talking about "detachment" and "letting go." Maybe she took it to make a point. Shashika's all about productivity, so maybe she thought taking the phone would help Matthew focus more. And Josh? Well, he's Josh. Chaos incarnate.

6. Do you have any suspects for who took the mobile and why?

If I had to bet, it's either Josh or Rosemary. Josh, because he lives for chaos and might've swiped it just to see what happens. Rosemary, because she's always irritated by Matthew's "carelessness" and probably wanted to teach him a lesson. Shashika? I doubt it—she's too focused on efficiency. Rachel's a wildcard, though. She'd probably return the phone with a detailed report on how Matthew could organize his apps better.

Written Testimony: Josh

---

1. Where were you when the mobile went missing?

Oh, I was definitely in the printer room. That thing was jammed again. Ken was there too, trying to “fix” it, but I swear his solutions just make things worse. I might’ve left for a bit to grab a snack, though... or maybe to check my emails? Not sure. It’s all kind of a blur—busy day, you know?

2. Could anyone corroborate your story?

Ken could, I guess. He was with me for most of it, at least until I left for... whatever I left for. Fiona walked by at one point, looking all zen, but she probably didn’t notice me. Shashika was rushing around as usual, so maybe she saw something? She tends to keep an eye on everyone.

3. What was your interest in the mobile?

Interest? None, really. Matthew’s phone is ancient—who’d want that thing? Plus, if I wanted to cause some fun chaos, I’d go bigger than stealing a mobile. But I did overhear something about it being missing. Might’ve been Rachel muttering about it, though she always looks stressed, so it’s hard to tell.

4. Did you hear anyone talking about the mobile on the day it went missing?

Well, now that you mention it, I did hear Rosemary going on about Matthew’s “constant distractions.” She didn’t say anything specific about the phone, but you know Rosemary—everything annoys her. Ken was grumbling about tech stuff, as usual, but that’s normal. Fiona? She didn’t say much, but she had this vibe like she knew something. Just saying.

5. What motivations might someone have for taking the mobile?

Oh, easy. Someone who wants control, definitely. Shashika is all about efficiency—maybe she thought she could make Matthew’s day run smoother without his phone blowing up every minute. Rosemary’s always trying to teach Matthew a lesson about responsibility, so she’d have a motive. And Rachel... well, she’s a stickler for order. Maybe she thought swiping the phone would help organize his life.

6. Do you have any suspects for who took the mobile and why?

Suspects? Oh, sure. I’d say Rosemary for sure—she’s always irritated by Matthew’s “lack of focus.” Rachel’s another possibility; she’s so meticulous she’d probably steal the phone just to color-code his contacts. Fiona... well, she’s all about minimalism, so maybe she took it as a way to “declutter.” Ken? Nah, he’s too busy with the printer, and Shashika? She’s got bigger things on her plate.

Written Testimony: Shashika

---

1. Where were you when the mobile went missing?

I was in my office, working on the new project timeline. I did leave briefly to check on some things in the kitchen, but I didn't stay long. Or maybe I stopped by the meeting room after that? I'm not quite sure, the day was a bit hectic, and there were a few interruptions.

2. Could anyone corroborate your story?

I'm sure someone saw me—Rosemary was in the meeting room when I passed by. Ken was lurking around the printer, of course. Maybe Fiona saw me too, though she was off in her meditative state as usual. If anyone could vouch for me, it'd probably be Rachel; she's always paying attention to where everyone is. But I can't say for sure.

3. What was your interest in the mobile?

I don't really have any personal interest in Matthew's mobile. I mean, it's Matthew's—what would I want with it? If anything, it's a distraction for him. I have more important things to focus on, like ensuring the projects run smoothly. Though, I did suggest he put it on silent during meetings... but that was more for productivity's sake.

4. Did you hear anyone talking about the mobile on the day it went missing?

Not directly, but I did overhear Ken muttering something about "outdated tech" while he was fiddling with the printer. He tends to talk to himself, though, so I didn't think much of it. Josh seemed unusually excited that day, but I didn't catch him mentioning the phone specifically. Rosemary, on the other hand, looked pretty annoyed with Matthew that morning—something about "constant interruptions," but I didn't pry.

5. What motivations might someone have for taking the mobile?

Well, Matthew's mobile is kind of central to his day, so anyone wanting to control his time might benefit. Rosemary's always trying to keep him focused, so maybe she thought taking the phone would help him do that. Fiona's all about minimalism, so who knows—she might've taken it just to declutter his life. And Josh? Well, if you want chaos, you don't need to look any further.

6. Do you have any suspects for who took the mobile and why?

If I had to guess... I'd say Rosemary. She's always so frustrated by Matthew's reliance on his phone. Or maybe Josh, just because it sounds like something he'd do for a laugh. Ken might have taken it to upgrade the software—he's always complaining about how Matthew doesn't keep up with tech trends. Rachel? I'm not sure, but she seemed stressed that day, and she's always organizing things, so who knows? She might've taken it to "help."

Written Testimony: Rachel

---

1. Where were you when the mobile went missing?

I was in my office, working through my usual tasks—scheduling, project management, the usual. I might have stepped out to check on something in the meeting room, though. Yes, I remember now, I went to remind Matthew about an upcoming deadline. But I was only there for a minute or two. After that, I returned to my desk to finalize a report. I'm sure someone saw me—maybe Rosemary? She was pacing around, looking stressed as always.

2. Could anyone corroborate your story?

I think Fiona passed by when I was heading back to my office. She's always so focused on her meditations that I'm not sure she even noticed me. And Josh was wandering around, but I'm not sure he'd remember seeing me; he tends to get distracted. Oh, and Ken was in the printer room, but I don't know if he'd have noticed either, he was deep into whatever issue he was "fixing."

3. What was your interest in the mobile?

I don't have much interest in Matthew's mobile beyond ensuring it doesn't disrupt our meetings. But it is true that his phone is full of important work-related information, and sometimes it feels like he's not as organized as he could be. I've even thought about suggesting a better way for him to keep track of things, but I didn't want to overstep. The mobile is useful for our team, but honestly, it can be a bit of a distraction for him.

4. Did you hear anyone talking about the mobile on the day it went missing?

I didn't hear anything specific, but I do recall Rosemary mentioning something about how Matthew "needs to be more mindful" with his belongings. She seemed pretty fed up. Fiona didn't say much, but she was calm, as usual. Josh, though—he seemed unusually quiet that day, which is odd for him. Ken? He was too absorbed in fixing the printer to talk about anything else, I think.

5. What motivations might someone have for taking the mobile?

Well, someone who wants control, for sure. Rosemary's always trying to get Matthew to focus more, and I can see how removing his phone might do that. Fiona's into this whole minimalism thing, so she might've taken it as a "symbolic gesture." And then there's Josh—he thrives on a bit of chaos, so taking the phone might've just been fun for him. Shashika might've taken it if she thought it would help streamline the workflow—she's all about efficiency, after all.

6. Do you have any suspects for who took the mobile and why?

If I had to point fingers, I'd say Rosemary. She's always on Matthew's case about staying focused, and I wouldn't put it past her to take drastic measures. Then again, Josh loves a good prank, and this has "Josh" written all over it. And Shashika? Well, she's always finding ways to improve things—maybe she thought taking the phone would help Matthew concentrate. But... I can see why someone might think I'd want the phone too. Maybe to help organize things a bit better... but I swear, I didn't take it.